Course Description

This course focuses on the communication of continuous text through the development and design of flexible and relevant typographic systems, and an understanding of how typographic relationships are used to solve communication problems. Students are introduced to the fundamental steps in conceiving, designing and implementing structures for multi-platform reading experiences. The class will cover print- and screen- based media in their own right and consider modular and adaptive cross platform solutions that pay attention to the specific and common requirements of each. Through a process of analysis, research, exploration, evaluation and design, students gain an understanding of how to integrate and harness the potential of editorial and expressive typography.

Course Objectives

1. To apply and expand the skills obtained in the first year of study in the department, namely the development of a vocabulary of visual forms as well as the understanding of the perceptual/conceptual process during which form and content are critically analyzed, evaluated and finally integrated to perform a specific task and to communicate a direct and coherent message. Students will consider:
 - What message am I attempting to communicate?
 - Who am I trying to communicate it to?
 - How am I going to communicate it?
 - How do the choices I make aid in that communication?
2. To prepare the student for visual communication skills by introducing an approach to design research and development which is based on the analysis of the syntactic, semantic, and pragmatic relationships pertinent to any visual communication assignment. This will include:
 - Analyzing and determining informational hierarchies in a given publication.
 - Using drawing as a way of thinking and a crucial first step in the design process.
 - Using platform-specific grid systems to unify text and image.
 - Exploring the compositional potential of typographic information in multiple mediums.
 - Expanding the visual and technical grammar of typography.
 - Developing craftsmanship and refinement of typographic sensibilities.
 - Developing original imagery which suits the desired tone and chosen content.
 - Instilling a sense of self-expression and artistic ownership of one's work and process.
3. To develop the ability to critically evaluate one's own work and the work of peers, and to work together to further the understanding of course principles for the group as a whole. To learn to explain and defend the choices made in service of goals 1 and 2, and to do so while presenting one's work to the class. To that end students will:
 - Evaluate their own work, judge progress and quality throughout the design process, knowing that the ability to judge one's own work is a crucial factor in determining the overall quality of that work.
 - Being conscious of choices made throughout the design process, and how they serve the communication goals at hand.
 - Be prepared to present their findings and their work confidently, utilizing presentation guidelines outlined later in this document.

Academic Program

Visualizing Language II GDES 313 is one of two required core courses in the junior year Graphic Design fall curriculum. Prerequisites: Successful completion of the GD sophomore curriculum or by permission of the instructor.

Course Outcomes

Knowledge and Skills:

- An awareness of how choices made throughout the design process affect the message(s) being communicated. The ability to analyze and identify informational hierarchies in a given text.
- Using drawing as a way of thinking and generating ideas.
- Understanding of grid systems and typographic standards and their role in presenting unified text and image content across different platforms.
- Exploring the compositional potential of typographic information.
- Developing the refinement of typographic sensibilities and finer points of craftsmanship in typography. Understanding of how to generate original imagery to aid communication goals.
- A sense of self-expression and artistic ownership of one's work and process. The critical ability to evaluate one's own work, and judge progress and quality throughout the design process.

Deliverables

Project 1: Publication Analysis

research, analysis and presentation presentations

Project 2: Cross Platform Publication concept presentations (to be discussed) process / reference project book (to be discussed)

final presentation prototypes: print and digital forms

Course Expectations

Attendance is mandatory. Three (3) unexcused absences may result in failure of the course. Failure to appear on time will be counted as a 1/2 day absence. Six (6) unexcused occurrences of lateness or any combination of absence and tardiness equal to three (3) days will result in failure of the course. Cumulative absences, excused and unexcused, that exceed 25% of the contact hours of the course will result in failure of the course. Please notify the Graphic Design Office at (215) 717-6225, if you will be late or will miss a class for any reason.

August 28	Class introduction, Syllabus, grading, etc. ASSIGNMENT: Begin Project 1
September 4	IN CLASS: continue work on Project 1
September 11	LECTURE: Publication Terms IN CLASS: Small group critiques, continue work on Project 1
September 18	IN CLASS: continue work on Project 1
September 25	IN CLASS: Present Magazine Analysis ASSIGNMENT: Begin Project 2a / magazine concepts
October 2	IN CLASS: Present Magazine Concepts ASSIGNMENT: choose one concept and begin type studies
October 9	LECTURE: Working with Grids IN CLASS: work on Project 2, individual meetings
October 16	FULL CLASS CRITIQUE IN CLASS: work on Project 2
October 23	LECTURE: Dynamic Layouts IN CLASS: work on Project 2
October 30	FULL CLASS CRITIQUE IN CLASS: work on Project 2
November 6	LECTURE: Print to Digital IN CLASS: work on Project 2 ASSIGNMENT: Begin Project 2b
November 13	FULL CLASS CRITIQUE IN CLASS: work on Project 2b ASSIGNMENT: send Project 2a to print
November 20	NO CLASS (Classes meet on Friday schedule)
November 27	FULL CLASS CRITIQUE IN CLASS: work on Project 2b
December 4	LAST CLASS: Final Presentations Project 2 due in Google Drive

Class Format

This course will operate as a six-hour studio class, with class time devoted to individual instruction and critique, group critiques and project assignments. Outside project work is expected and crucial to overall performance. Students should be prepared for each studio session with appropriate materials and completed outside assignments.

Grading

This course follows the grading system established by the University:

A	4.00	C	2.00
A-	3.67	C-	1.67
B+	3.33	D+	1.33
B	3.00	D	1.00
B-	2.67	F	0.00
C+	2.33

University grading policy can be found in the UArts Catalog: catalog.uarts.edu.

Assessment criteria

Students are expected to come to the studio completely prepared for the day's assignments and to work diligently through the duration of class. A positive evaluation for the course will be dependent on prompt and productive class attendance, active participation in group critiques and discussions, thorough execution of outside assignments (i.e. research, research documentation, up-keep of process book, etc.), consistent weekly progress and effective presentation of work.

Technology

This course is digitally intensive. Extensive use of InDesign, Photoshop and Illustrator are required. The software required for prototyping of screen-based media projects will be determined based on collective ability when we begin that part of the project.

Digital Policy

The responsibility for backing up digital files lies solely with the individual student. Corruption of files containing coursework will not be considered a valid excuse for missing a deadline. Students will also be responsible for the quality of work that they accept from any service bureau, bindery, photo-finishing house, or any other vendors commissioned to complete course work. Unwanted color shifts can be prevented through testing procedures prior to the final execution of the work to be submitted for the course.

Academic Integrity Policy

Academic integrity is a commitment to the core values of honesty, trust, fairness, respect and responsibility and their role in ensuring the health and vigor of the academic and creative community. Please note that students are encouraged to contact their instructors and/or the University librarians for guidance in maintaining academic integrity in their work. University policy on Academic Integrity can be found in the UArts catalog: catalog.uarts.edu.

Cell Phones and Social Media

Students should turn off their ringtones during class time. Any emergency phone calls or text messages should be dealt with outside of the classroom. Using class time for any unrelated internet activity will not be tolerated.

Office of Educational Accessibility

UArts values diverse types of learners and is committed to ensuring that each student is afforded an equal opportunity to participate in all learning experiences. If you have or think you may have a learning difference or disability—including a mental health, medical, or physical impairment—that would impact your educational experience in this class, please contact the Office of Educational Accessibility (OEA) at 215.717.6616 or access@uarts.edu to register for appropriate accommodations. Faculty can provide course accommodations/modifications only after receipt of an approved accommodations letter from OEA.

Tutoring

Treat the classroom as a collaborative environment. Be generous: compliment each other's skills, when possible. Be willing to teach each other. Additional tutoring outside of the course studio in technical instruction or other skills can be arranged through the following office:
